What were the two most valuable things you learned at this conference?

- That people appreciate even the smallest things we send. That it's more boring over there than what was conceived.
- That soldiers are proud of what they are doing despite what the media says.
- What the soldiers do while overseas. How we can help them while they are fighting.
- What soldiers do in Iraq and the positive aspects of the(...?)
- Serving is leading
- The conditions and what the troops really enjoy receiving.
- Pride and Honor
- Remember those who fight for us.
- How much humanitarian work is being done in the surrounding areas over there.
- The different things that the troops needed or appreciated being sent to them. I also learned about the different conditions in Iraq and Afghanistan.
- They really enjoy getting letters. It's fun to help.
- There's no "I" in "Team". Practice.
- Citizenship
- All the different ways to help. What soldiers go through.
- The soldiers are fighting for us at home and that some don't agree and that they are all different from one another.
- That the soldiers are missing basic items.
- Care about the war. Things about soldiers.
- I can't single out just two things. Everything that was said was valuable to me.
- Support the troops, help people out.
- What people are really doing overseas goodness.
- What the soldiers do while overseas. How we can help them while they are fighting.
- What the troops do, life in Iraq.
- That the troops need baby wipes.
- 1337 tr00p5 pwn
- Teamwork coloring.
- Terrorist can't hide from America. Methods to support our troops.
- How I can help, and LU students ROCK!
- Information about the soldiers, and that this war needs our support.
- That our soldiers are doing this out of love and that the media gives a poor portrayal of what is really going on.

- That soldiers really don't have much supplies and the small things you do really matter.
- How one can contribute to helping those who serve.
- Citizenship.
- The good things the troops do that the media does not talk about and how inadequate their protective gear is.
- What the soldiers are going through and what they need overseas. It was a definite reminder that the war is still going on.
- How to appreciate those who fight for my country.
- Soldiers are people too, they have lives, they want to know what is going on.
- It is important to let our troops know we care about them and its important to let them know what's going on back home.
- We are already helping troops by being ourselves, it's important to support our troops.
- The troops have a very different view of the war and that we need to do more.
- Support troops
- To truly personalize this war and put faces on the individuals, our support is what defeats the enemy, and that the soldiers do not even know us yet they risk their lives.
- That our troops need our support on a daily basis.

How did this conference help inform your concept of citizen leadership?

- To be honest, it didn't. (2)
- Reaffirmed my concept.
- No "I" in "Team"
- Reminded me of those who give their lives for our freedom.
- Gave more ideas and suggestions about how to be more helpful.
- Because of the interpretation of the word HERO.
- Citizen leadership can be fun and helpful.
- A lot
- Hard work
- This made me see that should not be selfish and help and support the people protecting my rights.
- I was impressed that we could come together in such numbers for soldiers.
- Help me to be more aware of what's going on in Iraq and Afghanistan.
- I'm not really sure yet.
- There are a lot of leaders here.
- That citizen need to step up and do things.
- To inform us that we need to do more because people need our support.
- It is important to be involved and help others when needed.
- Makes me want to do more.
- I learned the importance of being in something that is bigger than me.
- It reminds us that we are still capable of a lot to help war efforts.
- It shows me that you can do the little things and they can make a difference.
- Inspiration
- It has made an important and inspiring impact.
- It's important for us to support those who support us.
- It helped me to remember that serving is fulfilling our plan and missing that God has laid before us.
- It helped me realize that every little thing helps.

- Doing a little goes a long way!
- Speaker spoke of various methods in which he has been a citizen leader.
- Even n0065 can help.
- It showed that even small things can make a big difference
