

Bachelor of Science in Nursing (BSN) Application (for students already enrolled at Longwood University)

Applications are due by December 1 for the following fall.

Longwood's Nursing Program is designed as a four-year program with entry at the freshman level. Occasionally, there may be space for current Longwood students to enter as sophomores. However, there is no guarantee any space will be available.

Current students may also be considered for admission into the program along with new students applying as freshmen. If admitted, these students will be enrolled at Longwood for four years of full-time study regardless of previously earned credits.

The admissions process for current students as freshmen or sophomores is extremely competitive (if space is even available) so students are encouraged to explore other majors such as Therapeutic Recreation, Social Work, Communication Sciences and Disorders or consider post- baccalaureate nursing program offered at other institutions.

The Nursing Admissions Committee and review applicants' high school and college transcripts, ACT/SAT scores and personal statements.
