Why Pursue the Special Education Add-On Endorsement?

AT A GLANCE

Teaching Skills for Students with Disabilities

The Special Education Add-On Endorsement prepares teachers to meet students where they are. The endorsement courses create teachers who are confident in their abilities to:

- Describe characteristics of different disability categories
- Identify strategies appropriate for different disabilities
- Create and deliver effective reading lessons
- Create and deliver effective math lessons
- Evaluate students with formal and informal assessments
- Understand and write an IEP

Inspiring Instructors

Longwood University is known for its unsurpassed educator development, where professionals mentor other professionals. The Special Education Add-On Endorsement coursework prepares teachers to educate students with a wide variety of abilities, whether in general or special education classrooms.

Offering Endorsement Credentials

The Special Education Add-On Endorsement opens doors by offering busy licensed teachers the opportunity to add valuable Virginia Department of Education (VDOE) endorsement credentials to their resumes. Each Special Education Add-On Endorsement consists of five courses delivered through a convenient online format that makes the experience realistic and achievable for full-time teachers. A provisional Special Education license is not required to begin courses. PSPE 515 meets the Foundations of Special Education and Legal Aspects course requirements to obtain an initial provisional Special Education: General Curriculum teaching license. In addition to the coursework, the VDOE requirements state that in lieu of a practicum, one year successful full-time teaching experience with students with disabilities accessing the general curriculum in a public or an accredited nonpublic school may be accepted provided the teacher is assigned a mentor holding a valid license with an endorsement in special education.
