AIDS and Kids: The Whitney Project

Distributed by: The Body—The Complete HIV/AIDS Resource

Date: 1995

Length: 16 minutes

Grades: 3 through 8

To purchase: visit <http://www.thebody.com/content/art31173.html>

Description: This program teaches children to have compassion for people with HIV/AIDS. When members of a sixth grade class in Pecos, New Mexico learned about a girl their age in Illinois who has AIDS, they wanted to help. The Pecos students became pen pals with young Whitney Williams. They sent her friendly letters, handmade cards, videotaped greetings, and a handmade "living quilt." The students even launched a successful campaign to bring Whitney to Pecos for a visit. The mayor of Pecos made the date "Whitney Williams Day." He gave her a key to the city at a school assembly in her honor. Emotional statements from Whitney convey how much students' support has meant to her. Students and teachers at Pecos also speak of their association with Whitney. It has taught them about compassion, sharing, understanding, courage, hope and survival.

Avoiding the Teen Pregnancy Trap

Distributed by: Human Relations Media

Length: 20 minutes

Grades: middle school through college

To purchase: visit <http://www.hrmvideo.com/>

Description: Using a peer-to-peer approach, this program educates students about the risks of teenage pregnancy. A young mother describes how becoming pregnant changed her life and forced her to defer her dreams of college and a career. A teen father discusses how fatherhood changed his life and stresses that sexually active males must share the responsibility for preventing pregnancies. An abstinent teen shares her reasons for her choice. For those who aren't abstinent, program emphasizes that knowing the facts and using contraception effectively and consistently is the only other way to prevent pregnancy. Special attention is paid to exposing common myths that put teens at greater risk for pregnancy and deceive teens into thinking it's safe to have sex without contraception.

In the Mix #438 Sex: Everyone's Doing it – NOT!

Distributed by: Castle Works, Inc.

Date: 2000

Length: 29 minutes

Grades: 6-12, college

To purchase: visit www.castleworks.com or call In the Mix at 800-597-9448

Description: This special is aimed at raising awareness among teens that not "everyone" is having sex and that you don't have to be sexually active to be popular or be in a loving relationship. Teens from across the country discuss the pressure from their peers and partners to have sex before they are ready, and the effect of the media that too often glamorizes sex as “cool” and consequence-free. Using humor and real experiences, the program shows the emotional and physical consequences of being sexually active and empowers viewers to stick by their decision to wait, providing the practical skills to resist pressures. Discussion guide included, and lesson plan available online at www.inthemix.org

It's Your Choice: Avoiding Pregnancy and STDs

Distributed by: Human Relations Media

Length: 29 minutes

Grades: middle school through adult

To purchase: visit <http://humanrelationsmedia.com/>

Description: The decision to be sexually active has huge ramifications for all young people, especially in a society in which a million teenagers get pregnant each year, one in seven contracts a sexually transmitted disease, and HIV is an increasing threat to the adolescent population. In this video and print package, a group of real kids describe the consequences of their own sexual behavior. As the speakers in It's Your Choice tell their powerful stories, viewers are shown that they do have a choice in this sexual minefield, and they can avoid pregnancy and STDs. Experts provide valuable practical information on contraception and sexually transmitted infections, as well as helpful advice on decision-making, assertiveness, abstinence, and the need for personal responsibility. The Teacher's Resource Book offers extended role-plays and group activities.

Not One More Person: Avoiding HIV

Distributed by: Human Relations Media

Date: 1998

Length: 29 minutes

Grades: middle school through adult

To purchase: visit <http://humanrelationsmedia.com/>

Description: Adolescents are one of the fastest-growing populations of HIV-positive people. Yet many teens--due to their inexperience, their lack of assertiveness skills, and their feelings of invincibility--are not making wise choices. Viewers are introduced to six youths who recently tested positive for HIV. In their own words we learn how they got infected, and how it could have been avoided. The program then details how HIV is transmitted and the behaviors associated with infection. Viewers learn that some of these HIV-positive young people continued having unprotected sex without telling others of their HIV status. They emphasize that you can't trust that someone is HIV negative simply because they tell you so. The program concludes with urgent advice for today's uninfected teens: abstinence and never using IV drugs are the only 100 percent safe ways to avoid HIV.

Positive: A Journey into AIDS (classroom version)

Distributed by: University of California--Davis

Date: 1995

Length: 29 minutes

Grades: elementary school through high school

To purchase: visit http://psychology.ucdavis.edu/rainbow/html/vid_cat_full.html

Description: In this moving documentary, Michael Sutton (Stone) and Kimberly McCullough (Robin), who portray a couple battling AIDS on the ABC daytime drama, General Hospital, learn about HIV/AIDS from people living with the disease. They learn ways the virus is transmitted, and quickly find out that it attacks people of all ages, sexes and races. Kimberly takes an HIV test, learning why it is important to be tested if you think you may be at risk. They meet hospice patients who have less than six months to live and discuss with them how they became infected. They also talk about facing the prospect of an early death. In one particularly moving moment, Kimberly returns to visit a hospice patient she had seen days earlier, only to find he had since passed away. An informative and moving media aid to health units on STDs, human sexuality, substance abuse, and behavioral choices. Students' understanding of the relationship between unsafe behaviors and personal health, and the risks of contracting STDs through sexual involvement or shared needles is reinforced with chilling, and very human, clarity.

Preventing Sexually Transmitted Infections

Distributed by: Human Relations Media

Length: 23 minutes

Grades: nine through adult

To purchase: visit <http://humanrelationsmedia.com/>

Description: The numbers and percentages of sexually transmitted infections among young people are alarming. This informative video and accompanying CD-ROM provide students with all the facts, with an emphasis on prevention. In the format of a radio call-in show, information is provided on a wide variety of STIs, including chlamydia, gonorrhea, syphilis, genital warts, hepatitis, herpes, and even lice and scabies. Students learn the prevalence of these infections in the population, the symptoms, the treatment, and the long-term effects. Most importantly, students learn how to prevent these infections through increasing awareness, using condoms, and above all, abstinence. A cross-platform CD-ROM includes an interactive Risk Profiler, a nationwide Clinic Locator, a detailed quiz on STI symptoms, as well as a unique tool to help young people feel more comfortable discussing abstinence and safe sex practices.

Resistance: Preventing Teen Fatherhood

Distributed by: Human Relations Media

Length: 27 minutes

Grades: nine through adult

To purchase: visit <http://humanrelationsmedia.com/>

Description: This is a fast-paced and engaging documentary with three teaching points: to help young men understand the pressures to be sexually active that come from the media and their peers, to help them understand the lifelong emotional and financial consequences of fathering a child as a teen, and to offer strategies for avoiding teen fatherhood. In each case, viewers see and hear from experts as well as real teens who are grappling with these issues. The program questions the male stereotype of machismo and being sexually aggressive and models the wisdom of exercising the three R's: responsibility, restraint, and respect.

Risky Stuff

Distributed by: Risky Stuff

Date: 2003

Length: 24 minutes

Grades: 7 through 12

To purchase: visit <http://riskystuff.com/teaching.htm>

Description: What if you had to make one of the most important decisions of your life with no reliable facts to guide you? That's the situation for many young people when trying to choose between remaining abstinent, or becoming sexually active. Prospective partners and peers may not have accurate facts, and may not have the person's best interests at heart. Although exposure to STDs - and pregnancy - can occur with just one sexual encounter, many teens believe themselves invulnerable, or are too embarrassed to pursue valid information. Some end up having unprotected sex virtually by default. They also may not associate the sharing of needles for tattooing or body piercing with the spread of STDs - but, they should. Tackling uninformed decision-making head on, an engaging, multiethnic group of teens delivers straightforward information about peer pressure, dating, postponing sexual involvement, STDs, and need for protection if an individual does have sex. They discuss the link between alcohol, drugs, and risky behavior, and how sharing needles can lead to STD infection. Their lively presentation forcefully drives home the relationship between behavior and physical wellbeing. Various STDs are covered, with an emphasis on HIV/AIDS. Risky Stuff enables students to overcome embarrassment and consult adults for information about sexual involvement and consequences. With half of new HIV/AIDS infections in the U.S. occurring in people between ages 13 and 24, now is a crucial time for students to begin talking, asking - and listening - about STDs, sex, pregnancy, needles, and risky behavior.

Sexual Abstinence: Making the Right Choice

Distributed by: Human Relations Media

Length: 23 minutes

Grades: middle school through college

To purchase: visit <http://humanrelationsmedia.com/>

Description: This documentary program presents candid, thoughtful, and persuasive commentary by individuals and groups of teens from around the country. A nationally recognized sex educator talks with teens in several cities, asking questions that bring their thoughts into critical focus. What emerges from this energetic and thoughtful discussion is a strong rationale for abstinence that doesn't moralize and doesn't duck the tough issues of teens' emerging sexuality.

To purchase: visit www.aquariusproductions.com

Description: HIV is the most famous sexually transmitted disease of the recent past, but its notoriety has kept awareness of other STDs to a minimum, leading many to believe that if you can keep away from HIV, you don't have to worry. This program looks at the rising numbers of other, "silent" STDs that have led to rising numbers of infertile women, affected babies, related cases of cancer. There is specific information about prevention; diagnosis and treatment of the most common non-STDs. Nationally known researchers interviewed include King K. Holmes, MD, PhD, Director of the Center for AIDS and STD at the University of Washington and human papilloma virus researcher Diane M. Harper, MD at the Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center. Part of The Doctor Is In series.

Description: "If I can avoid HIV, I'm home free." With HIV continually in the media spotlight, awareness of other sexually transmitted diseases is dropping. This program from The Doctor Is In provides specific information about prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of the most common non-HIV STDs. Dr. King Holmes, director of the Center for AIDS and STDs at the University of Washington, and human papilloma virus researcher Dr. Diane Harper, of the Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center, offer insights into what is coming to be known as "the silent epidemic."

Taking Charge: Resisting Sexual Pressure

Distributed by: Human Relations Media

Date: 1998

Length: 29 minutes

Grades: middle school through college

To purchase: visit <http://humanrelationsmedia.com/>

Description: This video-and-print package is a comprehensive primer directed at showing teenage girls and (to a lesser extent) teenage boys how to respond to the pressure to have sex. Listening to real kids in dating situations, this video reviews a variety of common sexual pressure scenes and offers effective ways for young people to set their own limits and stick to them. A psychologist provides insight into how young girls often make the mistake of using sex as a tool to boost their self-esteem, instead of learning the real skills of valuing themselves and setting their own comfortable limits.
